About Tracy Kujawa

Tracy Kujawa began her love for horses as a small child. Growing up in Michigan on her family farm ponies and horses filled her life with joy and a passion she would never outgrow. Owning caring and showing her Welsh ponies and Arabians horses her whole life she knew they were the biggest part of her life but little did she realize how important they would become in saving her life. A now four-time cancer survivor, she credits her life to her beautiful Arabian mare Khuryia.

Angel Heart Farm was created in 2001 after a dream Tracy had about teaching bald-headed children to ride pretty ponies. For over 17 years Angel Heart Farm has served the most fragile yet courageous children and families one could ever meet. Several children have gone on to compete at Welsh and Arabian shows winning hearts and confidence along the way. "I'll see you in Heaven" is the first in a series of children's books about Faith, Hope, and Love. This partnership is with the Arabian Horse Reading Literacy Program www.arabianhorsereading.com
